The Wednesday Music Club owns a Baldwin grand piano which remains on stage at the Kappa Sigma Auditorium, maintained by the Club as a community service.

Over the years, contributions in honor of former and current members have created endowment funds which enable the Wednesday Music Club, a non-profit organization, to carry out its work. Today the club offers scholarships to young musicians for music camps and for further music study in college. In addition, prizes are awarded in annual judged competitions and in cases of financial need, the club supplements tuition fees for deserving students.

Marion Horween Chase General Scholarship Fund provides financial assistance to needy students for private music study and augments all other scholarships for young people as needed.

Making a World of Music

Wednesday Music Club
Charlottesville, Virginia
Founded 1923

Member Performance

The Wednesday Music Club is made up of over one hundred fifty men and women, listeners and performers, who share a love of music and a desire to support and encourage young musicians.

The club provides opportunities for members and their guests to perform at monthly meetings. Small informal groups within the club gather regularly for study or performance. Students of any teacher in the community can perform in student recitals sponsored by the club. Most importantly, each year the club distributes thousands of dollars in scholarships and awards to young musicians.

Founded in 1923 by just eight young women, the scope of the club's activities has grown enormously while its mission has remained unchanged. In recognition of the club's more than 75 years of dedicated service to the musical community, the Piedmont Council of the Arts honored the Wednesday Music Club with an award in 1999. In Charlottesville's world of music, the Wednesday Music Club makes a world of difference.
